██████ I would like to have your comment on the attached memorandum. I have the impression that there are several places where we may run into some problems. For example, in general, I think there is an over statement of what has been done. 3.a. for example, says that we are going to divorce this system from any resemblance to military hardware. Now just what is meant by this is a little obscure, of course. If someone wants to nip-pick it, we have certainly given them a good target. The very last part of paragraph 3 for example, indicates that the configuration is totally different from any item in the known military inventory or the design stage. The word totally seems to me to be something that could be questioned.
